Mr David Bradley to submit the following representation:-

“Concerns were raised by myself 12 months ago about the care and treatment of autistic adults in Leicester both in terms of the lack of adequate and appropriate facilities within the NHS and a poorly managed process to return such patients back into the community.

At the time, the previous chair requested a report on the outcome of further discussions on the matter and questioned whether the policy could be changed to improve the care of people diagnosed with Asperger’s or autism.

I am aware that a case study has been carried out by Mark Griffiths into particular failings in the CPA process, but I am not aware of any report or policy changes with regard to the care of adults with autism whilst held in hospital where there is a distinct lack of understanding or training in dealing with the complex issues of such cases. I note that the CQC also found deficiencies in providing necessary psychological therapies for such patients.

Similarly I would still like to question the effectiveness of the Care and Treatment Review process in achieving its aims of returning adults with learning disabilities or autism back into the community, where it is painfully obvious that there are not enough specialist residential establishments in Leicester to receive them. The result being that patients are kept in hospital far longer than is beneficial for their health and wellbeing, or they are transferred out of the region again adding additional cost to their care and treatment.

When will this commission hold LPT to account for not providing appropriate care for autistic adults whilst in recovery and hold Social Services to account for not engaging with health services to prepare and provide appropriate care packages in the community?

I refer the Commission to the Statutory Guidance for Local Authorities and NHS organisations to support implementation of the Adult Autism Strategy (March 2015) – page 31 – Local Authorities, NHS bodies with commissioning responsibility should JOINTLY – Develop and update local JOINT commissioning plans for services for adults with autism, based on effective JOINT strategic needs assessment, and review them annually, for example with the local Health and Wellbeing Board.”
