Introduction

In May 2011, the election of Leicester's first city mayor marked a dramatic change in the way we govern our city. This new way of governing gives us greater stability, allows for longer term planning and is democratically accountable.

One of my first pledges was to be transparent about decisions and the way we work. The publication of this delivery plan reflects these changes.

Developing the delivery plan, we have been listening to local people, businesses and communities. It sets out to capture the most critical current activity across all areas of the council's work.

The plan is structured around our nine priority themes for Leicester:

-  A place to do business
-  Getting about in Leicester
-  A low carbon city
-  The built and natural environment
-  A healthy and active city
-  Providing care and support
-  Our children and young people
-  Our neighbourhoods and communities
-  A strong and democratic council

This is a live plan which will be reviewed and updated on an annual basis. The delivery plan is deliberately not a detailed plan but is underpinned by a range of more comprehensive strategies and plans covering specific areas. You can see all of these on the council's website at leicester.gov.uk/deliveryplan

My executive team and I are working to deliver this programme. Our specific areas of responsibility are listed below. Every three months we will measure our progress against the targets in the plan; in May each year we will publish an annual review of our activity. The council's scrutiny system and councillors will help us assess our progress.

Peter Soulsby
City mayor

Leicester's mayoral team

City mayor Peter Soulsby is supported by the council's executive. The other seven members are all elected city councillors. Their areas of responsibility are as follows:

City mayor Peter Soulsby:

constitution and governance, emergency planning, economic development, transport, regeneration and heritage

Deputy city mayor Rory Palmer:

health and wellbeing and climate change

Assistant city mayor Vi Dempster:

children, young people and schools

Assistant city mayor Andy Connelly:

housing

Assistant city mayor Rita Patel:

adult social care

Assistant city mayor Sarah Russell:

neighbourhood services

Assistant city mayor Piara Singh Clair:

culture, leisure and sport

Assistant city mayor Manjula Sood:

community involvement, partnership and equalities

The executive holds meetings that are open. Members of the public can question the mayor and his team and hear about areas of work that they are looking at before any final decisions are made.

Meeting dates are published online at leicester.gov.uk/executivemeetings

Leicester today: the challenges we face

- Leicester's population grew by 17% between 2001 and 2011 – an increase of 47,000 people, or 12,000 extra households.
- Leicester is the 25th most deprived local authority in the country.
- 26,565 or 35.3% of children and young people between 0-19 in Leicester live in poverty.
- 34% of households receive welfare benefits.
- Areas in the city centre and west of the centre fall within the most deprived 5% of all areas in England.
- 29% of 18-24 year olds were unemployed in 2011.
- Government welfare reforms mean that 25,000 households will pay higher council tax this year. Hundreds of households will have their benefits capped.
- Due to government cuts, the council has already planned to reduce its annual spending by £75 million. We estimate that we will need to make additional cuts of £50 million per year by 2016.
- Deprivation affects people's health: in Leicester we have poorer health than the average in England. We have high rates of cardiovascular disease, respiratory diseases, cancers and diabetes.

Leicester is a changing city – in recent years we have seen greater population growth than other cities in the UK. The growing population leads to increased demands on our infrastructure and public services – roads, transport, housing, schools and council services.

The biggest challenge we face is beyond our control: the current national economic climate and massive funding cuts from central government. We are delivering a programme of savings in order to manage within our shrinking resources, while doing our best to protect frontline services and continuing to invest in our city. In short, we are having to do more with less.

Leicester's population experiences high levels of deprivation. More than a third of our children are growing up in poverty, which affects their health and their long-term life chances.

This year, government welfare changes mean that the income of many of our poorest residents will be squeezed even further. Changes to council tax benefit will affect 25,000 households and 4,142 households may face a bedroom tax. The council will also be faced with collecting small values of debt (around £200) from cash-strapped households. Over 550 households will have their benefit income capped.

There will be less money going into the local economy and debt levels are set to rise. We anticipate a big rise in demand for council advice and housing services. Local charities will face an even greater demand for food boxes.

It is in this context that we aim to ensure that those most in need are not further disadvantaged. We need to tackle child poverty, to provide opportunities for low income families to improve their standard of living, and to continue to promote independent living for disabled and older people.

With funding being cut it is even more important that we are clear about our aims and how we intend to achieve them. We will need to work together with our partners, our staff and with the public in order to continue to invest and deliver quality services the city needs. By building resilience in our communities and promoting the use of community assets we can help residents to respond to some of the challenges themselves.

Leicester is one of the most ethnically and culturally diverse cities in the UK. We are proud of our history of successfully welcoming new communities and need to ensure that new arrivals to Leicester are integrated and able to take part in economic and community life. In difficult financial circumstances it is more important than ever that we maintain the social fabric of the city and continue to celebrate our cultural and social identity. We also recognise the important inter-dependence of the city and its county – impacts do not stop at an artificial boundary.

Leicester today: our opportunities

- Ethnic and cultural diversity: 34% of Leicester residents were born outside the UK
- One of the fastest growing cities in England
- Bid to become UK City of Culture 2017
- The discovery of Richard III
- Shortlisted as a host city for the 2015 Rugby World Cup
- £160 million investment in secondary schools via the Building Schools for the Future programme
- £7 million investment in Leicester Market
- Connecting Leicester – a series of projects to improve links between leisure, heritage, housing and transport facilities

Despite the serious challenges, this is also a very exciting time for Leicester as we develop the city centre and the market, and reinvigorate many of our historic assets.

There is continued major investment in the city and its infrastructure and we have launched an economic action plan to kick-start the local economy and unlock Leicester's huge potential for growth.

Under Leicester to Work, we are creating hundreds of apprenticeships, graduate placements and six-month jobs to give young people work experience and support them into employment.

The discovery of Richard III's skeleton beneath a city council car park is enormously significant. It raises the profile of our city internationally in a way that we could never have planned.

In just two months, the Richard III exhibition at the Guildhall attracted 50,000 visitors, many from around the world. There is huge interest in the life and times of King Richard and the history of our city.

Today, Leicester is a city of diverse communities with a modern retail centre, historic buildings and wonderful green spaces. We have had success in culture-led regeneration and offer a vibrant programme of festivals and events. Now is the time to build upon our many assets, share our rich history and to restore confidence and pride.

A place to do business

Working in partnership with the business, public, voluntary and community sectors, the council needs to lead Leicester so that it can respond to the economic challenges facing us. Our city drives the economy across the whole of Leicestershire, based on a very strong and diverse business community. Economically, we are not dependent on any one sector, which provides a good platform for growth. However, despite a good track record for business start-ups in Leicester, too many of these fail within two years. We also have relatively low skill levels in the key growth areas for our economy.

As we move out of the current economic downturn, we need to capture the significant opportunities to create new jobs and growth in Leicester and the surrounding area. We also need to support local people to gain the qualifications and skills required for training and work. We will place particular emphasis on supporting young people, and those who live in poverty, to enable them to achieve their full potential.

In November 2012 we launched the Leicester Economic Action Plan which outlines a significant package of investment and work to unlock the city's potential for growth. Furthermore, we will build on Leicester's strong track record in culture-led regeneration. This has already delivered iconic buildings like Curve and the Space Centre as well as a vibrant programme of festivals and events to attract visitors and investment.

In autumn last year a thrilling discovery was made during an excavation at Grey Friars of remains, now found to be of King Richard III. The discovery has created great interest, boosted civic pride and provides a real opportunity to raise the profile of the city to a national and international audience. In February 2013 we opened a Richard III exhibition at the Guildhall telling the remarkable story of the excavation. Over the next year we want to build on this exciting new chapter in Leicester's rich history and heritage, helping us to better tell "The Story of Leicester".

In 2013/14 there will be changes to the way that income from business rates is allocated to councils. This means that we will retain what we collect locally for local use. By encouraging more businesses to locate in Leicester we will not only help to create jobs but also generate resources to reinvest in the city.

Summary of priorities

- To support people to secure training, apprenticeships, work placements and jobs through our Leicester to Work programme.
- To provide a package of support enabling new businesses to start up and existing businesses to grow.
- A significant package of investment to improve the look, feel and functioning of the city centre through Connecting Leicester.
- To ensure Leicester is able to grow in a sustainable way to deliver good quality housing, school places and employment sites across the whole city.
- To take forward the city's Cultural Ambition and create a thriving global city where investment opportunities are created and maximised.

Performance measures and targets

The performance for 2012/13 will be reported in early summer 2013 and will provide a baseline for the targets in this plan. These targets have been set based on past performance where data is available. If necessary they will be revised.

Performance measure	Targets
Creation of new jobs in the city	2013/14 – 1,062
Creation of apprenticeships	2013/14 – 142
New work experience placements created	2013/14 – 380
New business start ups	2013/14 – 400
New graduate placements	2013/14 – 60
New business workspaces/offices created	2013/14 – 6,150 square metres
Potential opportunities for local and smaller businesses through council procurement	2013/14 – £10 million (total value) Number of opportunities – 650
Number of affordable new homes	2013/14 – 138
Value of tourism, visitors and overnight stays	Average 3% growth per year: 2013 – £491.7m
Number of attendances at cultural and heritage venues	2013/14 – 1.333 million
Number of open days at Castle, Magazine and Wygston's House	108 each year across all sites

Getting about in Leicester

Leicester sits at the heart of a wider urban area which comprises a dense population of 520,000. Its very compact road system shares the same characteristics as many other urban areas: congestion, parking issues, and noise and air pollution.

Though the area is already highly populated, housing is expected to grow by 25 per cent by 2026. This growth will create further challenges for our road network. However, this presents a real opportunity to persuade people to change the way they travel to work and in their leisure time.

The pressure on our road network is considerable. Effective road maintenance is essential for ease of movement around the city and also to support business activity. We need to deliver an efficient public transport network both in terms of new highway infrastructure and also the use of technology, such as real time information to improve bus services and increase the use of buses.

The council's capital programme includes provision for road safety and speed reduction schemes (£1 million) as well as a range of improvements to roads, bridges, footways and traffic signals (£5 million in the next two years). A further £3.3 million is allocated to help meet the council's accessibility strategy, including the completion of the bus improvements on Humberstone Gate East and level access at bus stops.

Leicester has a good reputation for supporting cycling and walking: for example, through the annual Sky Ride and bike training for young people. We will be doing more promotional work and improving the physical infrastructure to provide safer environments and encourage walkers and cyclists.

Leicester needs a balanced parking strategy that will support the needs of residents and businesses but also recognises the need to encourage people to use more sustainable modes of transport such as buses, cycles and walking.

This plan sets out our priorities for Leicester's transport network to ensure that people can travel around Leicester more easily and in a sustainable way, improving the environment and making Leicester a better place to live and work.

Summary of priorities

- To deliver major transport schemes that improve the design and effectiveness of the highway network.
- To reduce the number of potholes on our roads and make sure that existing highways and footpaths are well maintained.
- To develop walking and cycling in the city by investing in infrastructure and through promotional activity such as the Sky Ride.
- To improve the quality of local bus and rail services through smart and integrated ticketing, real time bus passenger information, enforcement of bus lanes and other projects.
- To improve road safety and reduce the number of people killed or injured in road accidents.

Performance measures and targets

The performance for 2012/13 will be reported in early summer 2013 and will provide a baseline for the targets in this plan. These targets have been set based on past performance where data is available. If necessary they will be revised.

Performance measure	Targets
Number of dangerous potholes repaired	2013/14 – 6,500
Number of complaints about potholes	Reduce to 1,350 per year (currently averaging 1,400)
% of level access bus stops	2013/14 – 91%
% of people who travel to work in the city centre by car (peak time)	2013/14 – 49.5%
Number of people cycling every day	2013/14 – 16,100
Casualties from road traffic accidents	2013/14 – 1,249
Number of people killed or seriously injured	2013/14 – 82

A low carbon city

Climate change caused by greenhouse gases in the atmosphere is the greatest challenge facing the world today. We are already seeing the results of climate change. In the future it is going to have a huge effect on all of our lives through the effects of extreme and unpredictable weather and also through the cost of energy.

It is essential that we take steps to minimise the impact of climate change by cutting the amount of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases we produce. This is a global issue, but it has to be tackled locally. As a city, we can be proud of our record in facing up to environmental issues. Back in 1990 we became the UK's first Environment City and in 2010 we ranked second out of the UK's 20 largest cities in the National Sustainable Cities Index.

In our first 100 days in office we drew up a road map of activities that could deliver a 50 per cent cut in our carbon emissions by 2025. Then in September 2012 we launched our Carbon Action Plan which outlines how we will deliver this ambitious target.

This plan shows how we will cut carbon emissions from the council's own operations: buildings, vehicles, energy costs, street lighting, the amount of waste we produce and more. We will also be working with residents, businesses and other partners to cut emissions across the city.

The council is a large consumer of energy. In 2011/12 over £9 million was spent on electricity and gas in council buildings (excluding schools). With energy prices rising year on year, we have to find ways of reducing our consumption. One groundbreaking, big project we are undertaking is the £13.9 million capital investment to replace and redesign our street lighting. This will reduce consumption of energy by a staggering 57 per cent. The savings in energy costs will more than pay for the money being borrowed to fund the scheme.

Developing renewable energy and leading initiatives to reduce energy consumption in homes will help drive household energy costs down. Furthermore, carbon management will create new business opportunities and jobs in the city as well as helping the council save money.

Summary of priorities

- To reduce greenhouse emissions from our own operations.
- To reduce greenhouse emissions from transport in Leicester by promoting sustainable methods of travel.
- To reduce the emissions from homes.
- To reduce the emissions from businesses.
- To harness opportunities to develop skills, jobs and growth in the low carbon economy.

50% reduction in CO ₂ emissions within the scope of influence of local authorities (previously NI 186) by 2025 (baseline in 1990 – 2338.3 ktCO ₂)	2013/14 – 27%

The built and natural environment

Leicester is a great place to live, work and visit. But we can make it even better. Our city has been continuously developed since Roman times. We have a rich heritage which is reflected in outstanding architecture and buildings of historic importance. Furthermore, the city has significant natural assets such as the waterways, our many fantastic parks and the historic village centres.

We have already established a new heritage partnership with organisations across the city to preserve Leicester's historic built environment. Through the Story of Leicester we are promoting the city's heritage and opening up notable buildings and areas to the public.

The council is using its capital programme to help fund a number of projects. While capital grants from the government have reduced, the council is seeking to maximise resources from the sale of its surplus assets and from funding bodies (including the European Union).

Our Connecting Leicester programme aims to create a thriving heart to the city by improving connections between shopping, leisure, heritage, housing and transport facilities. Our proposals will link these areas into a safe and family friendly city centre, helping businesses to flourish and attracting new visitors. Members of the public have been given the opportunity to comment on all the Connecting Leicester proposals, including Jubilee Square.

A major programme of regeneration work will smarten up the Golden Mile and other key gateways into the city – this is already underway. The redevelopment of Makers' Yard shows how we are bringing old buildings back into use, while the new Innovation Workspace and Building Schools for the Future will deliver modern, high quality architecture.

The protection and enhancement of our green spaces are just as important to our quality of life. We have published a 10 year plan to promote biodiversity and aim to increase the number of our parks that hold prestigious Green Flag awards.

Summary of priorities

- To preserve and enhance the historic built environment with particular support for buildings at risk.
- To promote quality design in the built environment both through council and private sector projects.
- To enhance key retail gateways, creating improved local environments and commercial opportunities.
- To preserve and enhance the natural environment including green space and wildlife sites.
- To engage community groups and conservation organisations in protecting, enhancing and promoting the natural and built environment.

A healthy and active city

Good health is an important strategic issue for Leicester. This is because, on average, the health of people in Leicester is worse than the rest of the country. In our more deprived communities, health is considerably worse and these health inequalities between rich and poor are not reducing over time. Health indicators such as life expectancy tell us that, although health is improving in Leicester, it is improving at a slower rate than in the rest of the country. The gap between Leicester and the rest of the country continues slowly to widen.

In April 2013, Leicester City Council will take responsibility for leading efforts to improve public health. Good health is largely driven by social and economic circumstances. It is supported by healthy lifestyles, the take up of preventative care (such as screening or immunisation) and supportive social and economic factors such as good educational attainment, high skill levels, employment, decent housing, a clean environment and safe communities. A combination of health improvement initiatives, better health care and improvements in social, economic and environmental circumstances influence better health. There are no quick fixes and action taken in other parts of this plan will, over the longer term, result in improvements in health outcomes. But we also need to accelerate improvements in the short term. For improvements in both the short and longer term, we need to make sustained efforts to:

- engage individuals and communities
- use evidence of effectiveness to guide what we do
- target our efforts to where they can have greatest effect
- evaluate what we do to ensure the best use of resources.

It is also important that we seize the opportunities provided by the new relationship between the city council and the commissioners of health care through the Health and Wellbeing Board and through the council's scrutiny processes.

According to the director of public health's 2010 annual report for Leicester, the impact of substantial reductions in public spending and organisational change is likely to be negative. The council will continue to monitor such impacts, including those arising from our own budget reductions, in order to minimise the effects on those with the poorest health.

Summary of priorities

- Lifestyle factors
 - reducing smoking
 - improving the take up of physical activity, including walking, cycling and participation in sport
 - improving diet and the maintenance of a healthy weight
 - reducing harmful consumption of alcohol
- Care services
 - improving access, take up and quality of services, especially preventative care provided by GPs and primary care, and early treatment, immunisation and screening
- Wider factors that influence health over the long term
 - educational attainment, skills, employment, housing, transport and crime.

In addition to the developmental priorities outlined above, constant surveillance and vigilance is also required to ensure that the health of the population is protected from communicable disease and any new or emerging threats to health.

Providing care and support

Leicester City Council has an important statutory role in providing services for the most vulnerable in our city.

All children and young people have the right to feel safe and be safe from harm, neglect or abuse. Safeguarding children and young people is a top priority. We know that many children, young people and families in Leicester experience difficulty and disadvantage. Without additional support they may not do as well as others. Our services range from early intervention and prevention to targeted support for children and families in need. The council is also investing an additional £800,000 each year to help meet the costs of fostering placements for the increasing numbers of children coming into care.

Many people continue to be vulnerable throughout their lives or at particular points in life. One of the biggest challenges faced by society today is how we look after vulnerable adults and older people. The numbers of vulnerable adults in our city is rising, including those with learning disabilities, physical disabilities and sensory disabilities. In particular, as the population ages, we are seeing increasing numbers of older people who need care and support and more people with dementia. A vital part of our work is to support carers and help people to retain their independence as far as possible.

Traditional social support services are no longer appropriate for many people. They want more personal support that enables them to remain independent, active and contributing members of their communities for as long as possible. Expectations are changing and people are no longer content to be passive recipients of one-size-fits-all services. This demands a radical change to the model of support. It also provides an opportunity to build and harness the contributions communities can make in supporting themselves.

Leicester has set out to change the way adult social care works. At the heart of this transformation is the understanding that independence is important to almost everyone and the belief that, as far as possible, people should be able to make their own choices about what best suits their needs. They should also be empowered to control their own arrangements for social care and support. The main way in which people are able to exercise more choice and control is for us to give people who are eligible for social care a personal budget. In this way they can plan and buy the services they need. We are giving more people a personal budget for their social care as well as providing personal budgets for carers and increasing our support for carers in other ways.

We are also commissioning services to support older people and vulnerable adults to live independently in the community. This includes more opportunities for supported living and initiatives that help people into employment. The 2012/13 revenue budget included an additional £3 million to recognise the impact of an ageing population and to invest in preventative and reablement services to ensure that, where appropriate, people are supported to live at home. We are also working with our NHS partners to commission and deliver services to help people to regain their independence after an event such as a fall or a stay in hospital.

Summary of priorities

- To ensure people are provided with opportunities to maintain their independence.
- To ensure that people have access to quality services of their choice.
- To support people who are at risk of harm and abuse to stay safe.
- To support carers.
- To safeguard and promote the welfare of all vulnerable children and young people.
- To improve outcomes for particularly vulnerable groups of children and young people: looked after children, children and young people with special educational needs/learning difficulties and/or disabilities, young offenders, and children and young people who are carers for others.
- To prevent homelessness and provide appropriate support to people who become homeless.

Performance measures and targets

A group of key performance indicators has recently been developed to measure progress against the priorities in the Children and Young People's Plan 2011-2014.

Many of these measures are new and systems are being put in place to collect data and establish baselines. Targets have not yet been set for these indicators.

The performance for 2012/13 will be reported in early summer 2013 and will provide a baseline for the targets in this plan. These targets have been set based on past performance where data is available. If necessary they will be revised.

Children and young people

Performance measure	Targets
% of children becoming the subject of a child protection plan for a second or subsequent time	2013/14 – 10-15%
% of child protection plans that last two years or more	2013/14 – 5%
% of safeguarded children and young people who report they are/feel safe following intervention	New indicator – targets have not been set
Number of domestic abuse incidents where a child is present in the household	New indicator – targets have not been set
% of child protection plans where domestic abuse is a known factor	New indicator – targets have not been set
Number of referrals to hospital for children due to deliberate self harm	New indicators – targets have not been set
% of core assessments that were carried out within 35 working days of their commencement	2013/14 – 89%

Number of single people on the repeat homelessness list	2013/14 – reduce by 25%

Our children and young people

A city's children and young people are its future. Every child deserves to be safe, loved and have a happy and healthy childhood, free from harm. Every child should have the chance to pursue their aspirations and fulfil their potential.

The Children and Young People's Plan 2011-2014 is the single, overarching plan for Leicester's Children's Trust, which the council chairs. This plan sets out the strategic direction and shared priorities for children and young people in Leicester.

All children and young people need good universal provision, such as schools and health care. Some children, young people and families are more vulnerable – those with additional needs or who experience disadvantage. They are at greater risk of poor outcomes and may need additional targeted opportunities and services. The plan aims to improve the life chances of those most vulnerable to poor outcomes. Its priorities are focused on those areas that we most need to change, things that are best achieved by working together.

With our partners in Leicester's Children's Trust we will work to improve the life chances of the most vulnerable children. We will support all children to achieve their potential. We will keep children safe and make a significant contribution to mitigating the causes and effects of family poverty.

Government support for early intervention activities and services has been significantly cut and while the council met the shortfall initially, we cannot afford to continue to do this. We will need to ensure that all future early intervention services are delivered to those in greatest need and result in improved outcomes for children and families.

Summary of priorities

- To improve children's health and reduce the gap between the most and least deprived.
- To raise achievement in Leicester to national averages and higher, and narrow the gap between the lowest achievers and other children and young people.
- To develop an integrated children's workforce that "thinks family" and intervenes early to narrow the gap between vulnerable and other children.
- To reduce and mitigate the effects of family poverty on children's life chances in Leicester.

Our neighbourhoods and communities

The services we deliver at the community and neighbourhood level make a real difference to people's quality of life. They are linked with people's identity, confidence, self-esteem, happiness and wellbeing. They help people to learn, stay healthy, help communities grow together, understand each other better and discover shared experiences. They help local neighbourhoods and the city as a whole to develop a sense of place and they bring jobs and wealth to our city.

We are looking at ways of making our services in the community more effective and efficient. We are planning to save up to £1 million each year by 2014/15 through the better use of buildings and by helping local neighbourhoods to run facilities from some of these buildings themselves.

The vitality that comes from having many different cultures living and working together is expressed in Leicester every day through cultural and community activity: in sport, arts, libraries, community centres, parks, music, heritage, festivals and food. Leicester is a city with a sporting tradition to be proud of and we aim to build on that tradition to get more people, more active, more often.

The government welfare changes are a significant concern to the council and our communities. The changes will impact on already cash-strapped households and individuals. We will work with our partners to help communities understand the changes. We will also monitor closely the impact of welfare reform so that we can take action, where possible, to help communities cope better with the changes.

Our environmental and enforcement services help to keep people safe, tackle anti-social behaviour, domestic violence and substance misuse and they will help keep our city clean and green through waste collection and recycling, and by tackling fly tipping. Through our council housing we will provide good quality, energy efficient rented homes to over 22,000 households and work to make our communities and neighbourhoods places where people want to live.

Summary of priorities

- To provide a more joined-up service to residents so that people can get the information and services they need when they need them.
- To communicate effectively the range of welfare reforms that are taking place, to track the impact on our communities and where possible take action to mitigate or reduce this impact.
- To provide as many routes as possible for people to receive services – through a building, by telephone or over the internet.
- To ensure that a decent home is within the reach of every citizen.
- To ensure that people are more involved in decision making in their communities.
- To create opportunities for people to get involved, volunteer and develop local responses to local needs.
- To continue to improve the quality of the local environment by keeping streets clean and increasing recycling.
- To work in partnership to promote community safety and support people who experience anti-social behaviour and domestic violence.

A strong and democratic council

Public confidence in the council comes from seeing that we are open and accountable in the way we take decisions and deliver services. This includes being held to account by the public, media and the scrutiny process. We must have governance arrangements that achieve these goals. We have already implemented changes to our scrutiny process and to the constitution and we will continue to take steps to improve our governance arrangements.

Public participation in the work of the council is critical to help shape decisions and inform the allocation of shrinking resources. We have actively sought to gather views on a wide range of important decisions including the council's budget, Connecting Leicester, school catchment areas, gypsy and traveller sites, and changes to the council tax benefit scheme. We will continue to encourage active participation through communication, consultation and other key areas of work such as electoral registration.

We are working with the recently established City Partnership Board as well as other thematic partnerships, such as the Children's Trust and Heritage Partnership, to help drive forward the vision and priorities for the city. As partners, we will strive to ensure that we are making best use of our collective resources to improve outcomes for the people of Leicester. In doing so we are fully committed to fair practices and to tackling inequality of outcomes between different communities. The council has a well-established track record in relation to equalities and we are working towards achieving excellence in our approach, as measured against the equalities framework for local government.

In the current climate we recognise that there are increasing pressures on staff who work for the council. We greatly value their continued hard work, commitment and dedication. But we are also mindful of the need for our employees to drive the changes we need to make, not just within the council, but also within the wider sphere of public services for the future. We are, therefore, not complacent about the need to continue to invest in our staff so that they feel well-informed and clear about what is expected of them and are supported to deliver to the very best of their abilities. As we go through difficult challenges, we need to ensure that we protect our key front-line workers – for example, through the introduction of the Living Wage – to ensure that employees and their families are supported in the tough times ahead. We will also act responsibly as an employer to support the development and wider health and wellbeing of staff.

We need to ensure that our employees have a strong voice within the organisation so that we can engage their expertise and knowledge in developing the vision for Leicester. Our planned staff survey will give us a valuable insight into how employees think and feel about working for the council. We need to strengthen leadership to drive change. We need to understand and remove the barriers employees face in maximising their potential. This will mean us creating interesting and varied careers, recognising and rewarding good performance, and designing flexibility within jobs, so that skills become more portable across the organisation and this creates opportunities to share knowledge.

As well as focusing internally, we also need to be mindful of the external brand of Leicester City Council as an employer, so that we can attract talent as an organisation that people are keen to work for. Our employees have a strong public service ethos; we need to recognise this so that we continue to exercise our corporate social responsibilities, ensuring that, as an employer, we contribute to the economic regeneration of Leicester. This will see us continuing to support entry into employment through skills development initiatives and apprenticeship schemes.

Considering the budget pressures that face us now and in future, to remain strong as a council we will have to continue to use our resources as efficiently and effectively as possible, and to be clear about the impact we are having. We have already reduced our budget by £75 million and will need to continue to find considerable savings, estimated to be a further £50 million in the next four years. Last year we reduced senior management costs significantly and embarked on a programme which will save £15 million from our back-office services. We will continue to streamline such costs as much as possible in order to protect frontline services, particularly those that support the most vulnerable in our communities. We will monitor how well we are achieving what is set out in this plan and the impact this is having on outcomes for local people.

Summary of priorities

- Ensuring the way we work supports openness and accountability
- Communicating effectively and encouraging the people of Leicester to participate in the democratic process and in the shaping of services
- Working in partnership with business, the voluntary and community sector, community organisations, the education sector, faith groups and unions to maximise the benefits this can deliver
- A commitment to fair practices and to tackle inequality of outcomes and discrimination
- Supporting and valuing our staff
- Using our resources as efficiently and effectively as possible
- Measuring and communicating the impact of what we do
